Real

Amanda Robinson is an entrepreneur and philanthropist best known for creating Real Live Connection (RLC) in 2012, a nonprofit organization dedicated to providing positive development and life-enhancing programs to Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender and Questioning Teenagers and Allies ages 13-19 years old. Once a troubled, impoverished, struggling teen herself, Amanda has dedicated her time and passion to lending a hand to teens and proving they are not alone. Amanda is also a passionate motivational speaker and often lends her skills to community organizations by offering life-skills classes and sensitivity training for parents, educators and officials.

Live

Amanda was born in the farming community of McComb, Mississippi where she began her first business babysitting for military families at the age of 11. Her entrepreneurial spirit continued in 2000 when she founded a home-based talent agency. In the next decade she worked in Dallas and NYC with impressive clientele such as: Chanel, GQ, Seventeen Magazine, Macy's, Gap, Nicktoons, Cosmo, Def Jams, and more. Today, Amanda is the CEO and founder of Numillennium Trucking, LLC based out of Mesquite, Texas.

Connection

Eager to ensure youth are connected to resources to aid with bullying, homelessness, depression and substance abuse, Amanda and RLC connects them with organizations, institutions, corporations and therapists to tend to their pressing needs. Through counseling and education, RLC provides support on basic financial and life skills, including dealing with adversity, self-esteem, identity awareness, job market preparation, and emancipation.

Our mission is to provide a safe space to educate, develop and connect LGBTQ youth and Allies. We reach to eliminate barriers, restrictions and issues for the up and coming queer youth. With a desire to build a bridge, we strive to close the gap between adult and youth LGBTQ society. ~ Amanda Robinson
